

Julie Ireton

My expertise comes from my background in architectural design and construction, as well as project management. In my present position, I have become involved in land development as it relates to our restaurants but that only gives me an overall awareness and certainly no expertise. While with my architectural firm in Winnipeg, I sat on the Board for the Fred Douglas Society, a NFP, faith-based, seniors' housing organization. I also served as Chair of their Foundation back in 2000 – 2003.

My retirement date is slated for the end of March, I should then be available by early May when I will finally be residing on the island full-time... (no longer a "weekender")!

Don Eadie

Don Eadie has been a full time resident of Mayne Island since 2015, and a part time resident since 2005. He is a part time consultant, and has a background in science, technology and industrial Research and Development. During his full time working career he had significant senior management experience in the private sector. Don has had non-profit experience as a member of the Board of the Unitarian Church of Vancouver for five years, focussed on budgets, governance and HR issues. He is currently a member of the Board of the Mayne Island Recycling Society, where he has led initiatives on safety and strategic planning.

Pam Withers

Pam Withers is a former journalist and an award-winning young-adult author who has enjoyed all that Mayne Island has to offer for 26 years.

She also drives the Mayne Island Community bus, quilts, knits, and buys a lot of chocolate at Farmgate

Deb Goldman

Thirty years experience with provincial government in finance, procurement of services from community agencies including for profit and non-profits, sole providers, health authorities, First Nations communities; as well as direct service with vulnerable children and families. Currently, the Chair, SGI-Community

Economic Sustainability Commission, Director, SGI-Community Resource Centre, and facilitator of the Designing the Future Mayne Island Initiative.

Brian Crumblehulme

Represented Mayne on the Islands Trust up to 2019, recently SGI - Community Economic Sustainability Commission, involved in Mayne Island Little Theatre, has operated a business on the island for many years. Previous experience in overseas development, director of a non-profit community agency, a career in science, and currently a facilitator of the Designing the Future of Mayne Island Initiative.

David Brown

Worked in the Vancouver technology sector in various engineering and management roles. He brings experience in project management, engineering, construction and business strategy to the MIHS board. After visits to the Gulf Islands over many years, he moved to the island full-time late in 2019.

Carole MacFarlane

My expertise comes from my background in architectural design and construction, as well as professional project management for commercial builds. During the latter part of my career, I also became involved in land development projects in various jurisdictions. While with my architectural firm in Winnipeg, I sat on the Board for the Fred Douglas Society, a NFP, faith-based, seniors' housing organization. I also served as Chair of their Foundation back in 2000 –2003. Having recently retired in the spring of 2020, and after three years of calling Mayne my weekend getaway, I now happily reside on the island full-time